

Emiliano Bugatti, architect and assistant professor at Yeditepe University, has collaborated from 2000 to 2005 with Maurice Cerasi, full professor of Architecture at the University of Genova, in academic research on the Eastern Mediterranean historical cities. He has written in the volumes “The Istanbul Divanyolu--a Case Study in Ottoman Urbanity and Architecture”, “La città dalle molte culture” and “Multicultural Urban Fabric and Types in the Southern and Eastern Mediterranean”. In 2009, he finished PhD at the Doctorate School of Architecture, University of Genova, with the dissertation “Metamorfosi Urbane Mediterranee - Salonicco e Smirne costruzione e ricostruzione delle identità”. In the last ten years he has collaborated with architects and studios associated in Genova, Milano and Istanbul.