

Evangelos Liaras is a García Pelayo research fellow at the Centro de Estudios Políticos y Constitucionales in Madrid, Spain. He earned his BA in history from Harvard University and his MS and PhD in political science from the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. His dissertation on electoral engineering in divided societies was awarded the Juan Linz Prize by the American Political Science Association in 2010. He has also held postdoctoral fellowships at Koç University in Istanbul, Turkey and George Washington University in Washington, DC.